The Arena. An Illustrated Monthly Magazine. Edited by John Clark Redpath and Helen H. Gardner. Price, $3.00 per year in advance. Single numbers, 25 cents. Boston : The Arena Company.

The March number of The Arena is the initial issue of the magazine under the new management and editorship. The Company has been reorganized on a solid financial basis, and the current number of the magazine comes in a form and substance well calculated to win public favor, and following its well established policy of liberalism and reform.

The number opens with the first of a series of important contributions on the development and reform of city government in the United States. This first article is by the Hon. Josiah Quincy, Mayor of Boston, who therein expresses himself as in favor of the municipal ownership, though not necessarily the municipal operation, of public services, such as gas and electric lighting and street railways. An excellent portrait of Mayor Quincy forms the frontispiece to the number. The article by Professor LeConte, of the University of California, on "The Relation of Biology to Philosophy," is a searching adverse criticism of the seventh chapter of Professor Watson's recent work on "Comte, Mill, and Spencer;" but it is also very much more, being a thoroughly up-to-date exposition of the general theory of organic evolution, and its relation to religion as well as philosophy.
